Measure sent to Senate

House votes to repeal state fair trade laws

fair trade laws, which opponents contend take $80 million a year out of the pockets of Ohio consumers, came a step closer to repeal Thursday.

The House voted 75-13 to repeal the laws and sent the measure to the

The House's vote came just before the lower chamber recessed for the weekend. The Senate was scheduled to meet today for a brief session, which was expected to include a vote on a bill banning age discrimination in wages.

Sponsors of the fair trade repeal legislation told the House on Thursday the laws are obsolete relics of the Depression.

Once valuable, the laws now do nothing but gouge American consumers out of $2.1 billion to $3 billion a year, the sponsors say.

The three finalists, Regina Roush, Tammy Walters and Jomi Warner, were selected after being interviewed with nine other contestants this week by a three-member screening committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Corcoran of Wilmington and Mrs. Linda Hyel of Springfield.

Cororan is the 4-H extension agent for Clinton County and Mrs. Hyel serves as home economics agent for Clark County in Springfield.

To have been eligible, contestants were required to be 16 years of age by January 1 but not older than 19; a member of either 4-H, Future Homemakers of America, Future Farmers of America, Junior Achievement, Girl Scouts or Campfire Girls; and could not have served as the Junior Fair queen or an attendant previously

Each contestant was judged on the per cent for overall personal appearance. The winner from the three finalists will be chosen from ballots cast by Junior Fair exhibitors. Voting begins Saturday

Coronation ceremonies will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the grandstand on the Fayette County Fairgrounds July 20. Jane Ann Kiger, president of the Junior Fair Board, will present the opening remarks and introduction of the finalists. She will also crown the new queen while the 1974 Favette County Junior Fair Queen Teresa Jordan of New Holland presents the bouquet of roses to her successor

Miss Jordan reflected on her years as Junior Fair queen as "a learning ex-

While the 1975 queen will succeed Miss Jordan, the runnersup will replace the 1974 court consisting of Lenora Slaven, 19, of 1292 Dayton Ave., and Debra Frazier, 19, of New Holland.

Regina Gale Roush, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Roush of Jeffersonville. A 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, Regina has been active in the Silly Stitchers 4-H club as a junior leader, is treasurer of the Fayette County Junior Fair Board, and president of the Camreel company in Junior Achievement. She was also her senior Future Teachers of America, senior basis of 20 per cent for activities, 30 per class treasurer, a member of the Student Council vice president of Y-

Service, Dramatic Arts, Symphonic Band and Future Homemakers of America.

Tammy Walters is the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marcum of 4511 Miami Trace Road. She will be a senior at Miami Trace High School where she has been active in various school activities including cheerleading, Student Council, a class officer and Y-Teens. Tammy is also a member of Junior Leadership, is an advisor and officer in both the Wayne Progressive Farmers and Wayne Fashionaires 4-H clubs and is active in swimming and diving.

The third finalist is Jomi Layne Warner, a 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School. She is 17 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Warner of New Holland. Jomi has been freshmen class president, sophomore class treasurer, junior and senior representative to the Student Council, secretary for the South Central Ohio League Student Council and a member of American Field Service. choir, Folksingers, Future Teens and member of American Field year member of Junior Leadership.

School aid formula faces obstacles

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) House Finance Committee has resumed hearings on a state school aid formula, but the road to eventual approval of a genuine equalization plan is still blocked by major obstacles.

Already beset by serious problems with time running short, the panel heard a new proposal Thursday, that could cost as much as $13.1 million in additional funds, said the state education department, if it is included. Cleveland School Superintendent Paul Briggs asked the committee to provide for programs dealing with "racial isolation" of minority students to try to develop a better racial mix. Briggs said $50 per minority student

The big city educators said the programs would be designed to bring together whites and minority students-particularly blacks-for special learning projects. He said many black Cleveland children attend schools "without a single white student" from kindergarten through high school.

Asst. State Superintendent Paul Spayde said that 262,215 minority students in 37 local districts would qualify for such a program at an estimated cost of $13.1 million in a single school year.

Briggs pointed out that not all eligible students could realistically be expected to participate in projects, lessening the actual cost of his proposal.

He did not suggest a source of additional revenue, but stressed that funding should not come from basic aid or money already appropriated for other categorial programs, such as municipal overburden.

Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, was doubtful that the minority program could be financed for the current

The committee will begin considering amendments next Tuesday which are almost certain to strip out several key sections of the bill which passed the Senate last May.

Sources close to the Democraticcontrolled panel said it would definitely remove a provision eliminating some property tax rollbacks and language which critics charge would give teachers an upper hand in labor negotiations.

That battle is over," one knowledgeable committee source said, "but then you get to the point of dealing this thing," Shoemaker said.

with situations where some school districts would lose money in the new formula.

The formula, which bases state aid on local property tax effort, has been opposed by school officials from Toledo, Dayton and Cincinnati who contended their districts would not be adequately compensated.

Spayde has promised to present the committee with computer printouts on Tuesday, calculating what each of Ohio's 616 districts would receive under the equal yield plan.

Meanwhile, Shoemaker assigned a $577 million capital improvements budget bill to subcommittee. The construction budget was removed from the overall state spending plan, approved, with some exceptions, by Gov. Rhodes.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. grain harvest should be so huge this year that retail food prices through late 1976 will increase at a slower rate than they have in the past two years, government officials say.

Less clear, however, was how much impact a possible largescale purchase of U.S. corn and wheat by the Soviet Union would have at the supermarket checkout counter.

In a report Thursday, the Agriculture Department estimated the 1975 corn harvest at a record six billion-plus bushels, or 153.6 million tons, up 30 per cent from last year's weatherplagued output. The wheat harvest is anticipated at nearly 2.2 billion bushels, or 59.5 million tons, 22 per cent higher than the record 1974 production.

The department's director of economics, Don Paarlberg, said such bumper crops would "tend to dampen food prices through the late months of

1976," when another harvest would be

The lower cost for livestock feed also would trigger larger output of meat, poultry and dairy products and consequent lower costs to the consumer next winter and through 1976, Paarlberg said.

But he cauttoned that there could be a temporary shortening of the meat supply if producers decide to take advantage of a huge corn crop and have animals fattened at feedlots rather than sending them to slaughter directly from the pasture, as many have been doing in the past year or so.

Paarlberg said that over-all the new estimates for corn and wheat mean that retail food prices may be held to an average gain of 6 to 8 per cent over the course of 1975. By comparison, they had soared by 14.5 per cent in both 1973

Perk attacked as poor mayor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cleveland Mayor Ralph J. Perk came under attack Thursday by a national public employes union president who said Perk was a poor manager of his city.

The accusation was made by Jerry Wurf, president of the 700,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Union, at a speech Thursday at the National Press Club here.

Wurf criticized Perk for backing President Ford's defense budget and for supporting Ford's request to retain the same allocation formula for general revenue sharing Butterworth CIA White House link?

WASHINGTON (AP) presidential aide Alexander Butterfield, who revealed the existence of former President Nixon's taping system, was a contact officer for the Central Intelligence Agency while he served in the White House, a former CIA liaison officer for the Air Force

Shortly after the liaison officer, retired Col. L. Fletcher Prouty, made after he left the White House, was not the disclosure on television, an informed source said Prouty had given the information to the House intelligence committee in recent days.

Prouty was called to appear before committee investigators again today. Butterfield gained national prominence nearly two years ago when he disclosed to Senate Watergate investigators the existence of then-President Richard M. Nixon's White House tape recording system. Tapes from the system, which recorded Nixon's conversations with his top aides, were instrumental in forcing his resignation on Aug. 9, 1974. In an interview on the CBS-TV 'Morning News," Prouty said he had "no doubt" about Butterfield's employment by the CIA.

NBC News said it also had learned of Butterfield's CIA connections.

Former Associated Press that Prouty disclosed Butterfield's CIA role to investigators for the House intelligence committee. The committee is investigating the CIA and other intelligence agencies. But the source said the investigators have no documentary evidence to support Prouty's assertion. Butterfield, who was named head of the Federal Aviation administration available for comment.

But his wife called Prouty's description of her husband's role (a) ludicrous "absolutely false . allegation." She added: "It would be absolutely laughable.

Prouty's comments came just one day after CIA Director William E. Colby denied as "outrageous nonsense" earlier statements by Reps. Robert W. Kasten, R-Wis., and Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., that there was evidence of CIA penetration of the White House, the Office of Management and Budget and the treasury and commerce departments.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate intelligence committee, said Thursday his panel planned to investigate the allegations of CIA penetration in the White House A congressional source told The and elsewhere.

Doubt North Viets really want detente

WASHINGTON (AP) - American while the rest are declared dead but officials are highly skeptical that North Vietnam is sincere in its professed desire for normal relations with the United States.

Officials offer this assessment in explaining why the United States has not responded affirmatively to a North Vietnamese overture to Washington, made just a few weeks after the American-backed regime in Saigon surrendered on April 29.

One reason for the American skepticism is that Hanoi conditioned establishment of ties on U.S. agreement to provide Vietnam with reconstruction aid, a demand which U.S. officials say North Vietnam knows is "completely unacceptable.

In unofficial circles, the theory has been advanced that the North Vietnamese proposal may be serious because of a desire to use the United States as a counterweight to Soviet and Chinese influence in Southeast Asia. However, competent officials say there is no evidence to support this view.

In anticipation of the establishment of a civilian government in South Vietnam in the near future, the United States has been negotiating with an unidentified foreign country to represent American interests Saigon. No similar arrangement in contemplated for Hanoi

Still, the United States has not ruled out entirely some sort of relationship with North Vietnam once the bitterness accumulated over the past two decades

In a speech last month, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said that the American attitude toward Hanoi and other Communist regimes in Indochina 'will be influenced by their conduct toward their neighbors and their attitude toward us.

Washington's relationship with Hanoi is expected to be shaped largely by Hanoi's policy toward the 2,300 Americans still unaccounted for in Indochina since before the 1973 cease-

About 900 of them, including 30 civilians, are still listed as missing, their bodies unrecovered. Under the Paris agreement. Hanoi pledged to help account for the missing and to return the remains of the dead.

A recent statement by North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong indicated a willingness to discuss the issue. It was not clear, however, whether the statement attached conditions to discussions, and State Department officials say they are waiting for a less ambiguous offer from Hanoi before pursuing the matter.

Bingo bill strikes snag

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A proposed constitutional amendment to legalize charitable bingo games was sent to a legislative conference committee Thursday after the House disagreed with Senate amendments to the proposal.

The Senate, in passing the resolution, specified it would apply to bingo games only and not to lotteries in general. It also changed the bill to apply specifically to charitable ganizations, rather than the House's wording of nonprofit organizations. The House rejected the changes 1-85, with Rep. Patrick A. Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, the only member voting to concur with the Senate. There was no debate before the vote.

The conference committee will attempt to draft a compromise version. If that is approved by both houses, the amendment would be placed on the November general election ballot.

Two Ways We Help to Build America!

Top rate savings accounts Practical home financing

Since 1831 savings and loan associations have performed these two main functions. Over the years this community and nation has literally been built by these essential financial operations.

Because we offer savers and investors the highest legal rates of interest income on passbooks and certificates, people are encouraged to save regularly or invest cash reserves.

Then, these savings deposits are loaned to local families, on practical terms, to help them build or buy a home of their own. And eventually, to own it debt-free.

For your benefit, the community's and the nation's, open an account or add to savings now. Then you'll be assured of earning the most interest in the months ahead.

Opinion And Comment

Guidance for parents

Many parents of teen-agers find themselves caught in a dilemma so far as rock music concerts are concerned. They feel misgivings about the impact of these primitively throbbing travaganzas, with their overtones of degeneracy and vice. At the same time, they think perhaps they are wrong to inhibit their offspring.

The dilemma is not made any easier by reports about the rock groups' effect on their audiences. For example, a commentator's observations concerning the Rolling Stones' opening concert in New York:". . .the music is there like your heartbeat or pulse - viscerally.

they sacrifice the subtleties of their music to concentrate on volume and visceral appeal." Moreover, "At the heart of the spectacle is the figure of Mick Jagger" (who shows) "complete disdain for the normal sexual and artistic conventions."

Then there's the knockout new Scottish group, the Bay City Rollers, described by the impresario who will book them for their first U.S. appearance as "the most huge, huge thing for young people since the Beatles." Sid Bernstein says of them: "They're clean cut, don't smoke or drink and discourage drugs. . . . They play good, happy, good-time music. . . It's bubblegum; it's for the young."

Bernstein additionally informs the breath-bated public that "it probably will mean barricades in the street when they come here. They attract frenzied, devoted crowds. Their fans are young, 8 to 16 or 17, and all female.

Making due allowance for puffery, it sounds frenetic enough. Anyway, if things get too bubblegummy the kids can always look in on the Stones for some of that visceral appeal and a taste of Jagger's "disdain for the normal sexual and artistic conventions." It gives worried parents a choice of what they'll say yes to and hope for the best.

balance of payments. Oil has saved the West. With raw materials and Nigeria, not to mention all those sandy sheikdoms around the Persian Gulf. The Shah of Iran makes Cyrus the Great look like a piker. Rhodesia has two-thirds of the world's chrome, and if the ore can't be sold directly to the nations that abide by the UN boycott of the Rhodesians the cynical Russians stand ready to buy it and "broker" it a monopoly price to the honest fools of energy getting a big edge in the socalled terms of trade, the wealth of the world is being subtly diffused to the most unlikely places.

The latest beneficiary of the changing order is the poverty-riddled Dominican Republic, which shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with even poorer Haiti. Just short of five centuries ago, in 1494, Indians told Columbus's Spaniards about a trace of yellow metal at a spot high in the Dominican mountains. It wasn't much, and it didn't take long for the visible metal to be worked out. The years went by, and various attempts to get at the gold, silver, copper and zinc that existed in a complicated chemical "lock" in the earth of the Pueblo Viejo Mine were no more successful than the French efforts to construct a canal across Panama. Not even the bloody tyrant Trujillo, who could force Dominicans to work for him and the rest of his strong-armed elite for next to nothing, was able to get anything out of

Pueblo Viejo. More time passed and Trujillo disappeared, the victim of assassins who, according to several witnesses, used a cache of weapons deposited by the CIA. Lyndon Johnson sent in the Marines to keep the Dominican Republic from becoming a second Cuba, and a mild professorial type, Joaquin Balaguer, took charge as El Presidente in the capital city of Santo Domingo. But still the Dominican Republic was dirt poor. The next chapter in the story was written in Washington, D. C., where not all the power of the U.S. Treasury could hold the price of gold to the official $35 an ounce. The world was catching on to the fact that the U.S. paper dollar is not redeemable in anything more than an equivalent amount of paper. So the Rosario Resources Corporation, an American company that deals in Florida limestone, Georgia granite, Canadian and Texas oil and gas, with a few mining operations in Mexico and Central America to give it a background in gold prospecting, decided to have a look at the abandoned Pueblo Viejo property.

Pueblo Viejo might, so the geologists who sank 300-foot test drills into the unprepossessing Dominican mountain rocks and earth, pay off with gold going past $50 an ounce. But nobody could pan the gold out of the chemical lock, and there were no veins to be attacked with the sophisticated modern version of the pick. It would take something like a dozen 50-ton trucks, massive, drills, and a complicated combination of mechanical and chemical flow porcesses, with "cyanidation" doing a penultimate job, to get "dore" bullion (a mixture of gold and silver) in commercially significant quantities.

The geologists think there are 30 million tons of gold-silver ore in the Pueblo Viejo oxide reserves, with an undetermined amount in the chemically more difficult sulphide deposits that exist beyond the oxides. But the end product of mining a ton of Dominican oxide ore must be expressed in fractions - 0.1258 ounces of gold and 0.76 ounces of silver per ton. Before it can be shipped to Switzerland by air for a final refinement, for which the Swiss pay off in 10 days, a 50-ton truckload of ore must be reduced to some six ounces of gold and 38 of silver for incorporation in a "dore" bar that you can lift in your two hands. The fact that so little can be valued at so much is one of the strangest anomalies of our

To put Pueblo Viejo in business, $41 million in capital was needed. Rosario looked for help. The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic was willing to take a 20 per cent interest in the project. Rosario could go for 40 per cent. The remaining 40 came from a most curious source: a self-made Idaho tycoon, J.R. Simplot, who made his fortune out of the potatoes he processes for bulk delivery to the McDonald hamburger people for French fries.

And what will the Dominican Republic get out of it all if it is as profitable as it is likely to be if gold remains at $165 an ounce? Some 45 per cent of profit automatically goes to the government in taxes. The Dominican Central Bank gets the dividends and its share of retained equity value on its 20 per cent of the stock. Dominicans trained in mechanized skills do virtually all of the mine work, at wages well above a Caribbean minimum.

Whether the "people" will benefit depends on what the government intends to do with the money. But regardless of the internal division of tax and dividend income and the operating paychecks, the Dominican Republic, with the biggest gold mine operation in Latin America, will no longer be a totally have-not nation.

Girlie magazine stirs new fuss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - There's a who was hired in February and still is second development in the case of Gov. within her probationary period. James A. Rhodes and the notorious girlie magazine.

First, the governor picked up a copy of Hustler magazine because it contained nude photographs of Jacqueline Kennedy said, "Obviously, it isn't something you'd want to encourage among your employes. To say the least, it was embarrassing.

Second, state officials found out that one of the other nudes in the magazine was an employe of the Department of Economic and Community Development James Duerk, department director.

Rhodes explained his purchase of the Columbus-based magazine by citing his historical interest in presidential

"I'm a history buff on first ladies and bought it for that reason," said the governor, coauthor several years ago of a book on Mary Todd Lincoln. "I've got it filed away.

Identity of the state employe displayed in a five-page spread of nudes was not disclosed, but sources about the woman. The sources said are transported up to the 10th floor and Duerk was ordered to fire the woman, fed into the treasurer's computer.

Duerk, denying Rhodes gave him any orders, would say only that he is looking into the circumstances surrounding the photos.

Some state government sources said officials feared a legal challenge if the employe is fired because of the photos. Altogether, the situation is confused.

State Treasurer Gertrude Donahey's $250,000 tax computer operation is going to get an old-fashioned dumbwaiter to help keep it in business. Frances Steigerwald, the treasurer's budget manager and purchasing agent, told the state Controlling Board the treasurer's office needs a 500-pound capacity dumbwaiter costing $14,525. Its mission: To transport quickly large cartons of computer cards between the treasurer's office on the ninth and 10th floors of the State Office

Dear

Wife Rations Love and He's Starved

DEAR ABBY: After 26 years of a fairly good marriage with three selfsufficient children and a paid for home, my wife and I sleep back to back-like two fireplace logs.

She rations her love as a "reward" for favors and withholds it as "punishment." And when it's given, which is seldom, it's with very little enthusasm (an understatement).

After nearly a year of this treatment, I'm considering breaking my flawless record of a faithful marriage to seek attention elsewhere.

I don't see much difference between a wife who trades her love for personal gain and a lady of the evening who sells her favors for money. I consider myself a darn good husband. Time is running

DEAR DISGUSTED: You're confusing sex with love. Love is a gift, not an obligation. Sex can be obtained at a price. Love cannot.

If you haven't discussed the state of your marriage with your wife, it's time you did. If you both want a better marriage. I recommend counseling. But if you're asking me for the green light to pursue the red light, I'm negative.

DEAR ABBY: I have written a letter to a very dear friend of mine, and my problem is I haven't the courage to send it. If you publish it, I am sure my friend will see it.

Here it is: My dear, dear friend:

How else can I say it? You make me sick! No matter how I try to avoid the smoke of your cigarette, it's there, irritating my eyes, my sinuses, and getting into my lungs.

After a few hours with you, I'm literally ill. Sometimes when you blow your smoke directly at me, I turn my head or try to "fan" it away with my hand. You offer a small apology and move your cigarette-but you never put

Of course, my problem is that I am a coward. I like you too much to tell you to your face that you are selfish. I don't want to hurt your feelings, yet you go on hurting mine.

Do you know that your breath is always bad? And no amount of perfume can mask the smell of stale smoke that's constantly on your hands, clothing and hair. I love your company. Your sense of humor is priceless, and you've demonstrated your friendship to me many times. Yet, my doctor has told me I must avoid you. Can you believe it? Your smoking is making me ill. I "SMOKED OUT"

DEAR ABBY: We recently received an invitation to a golden wedding celebration. At the bottom was printed: "Your presence - not presents is requested.

Wasn't that a lovely way to say "No gifts, please"?

Churches' task: nurturing faith

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer NEW YORK (AP) - A group of church scholars, analyzing why church membership and participation have slumped during the past decade, say it often is because churches have not concentrated on their prime task: nurturing faith.

They've tended to stress working for social betterment rather than on instilling religious premises for it, according to several of the experts. They say such efforts are fine, but don't basically energize church life.

The first essential to church vitality is the job of bolstering convictions, devotion and a steadying perspective on reality, the theologians and sociologists say, with social action derived from that prior function.

If churches simply join secular forces in good causes, such as struggles for social justice, without fueling the religious roots of it, the church is "committing institutional suicide," says the Rev. John Neuhaus of Brooklyn, a Lutheran.

He says the health of the churches requires that they be "distinctive enough to warrant real gut commitment" by deepening awareness of ultimate values and purpose. Without that, he says, churches lose their vitalizing core.

They also are "denying the world the

NSA goal to achieve world peace

DENVER (AP) - Its more than 20 million members recite a daily prayer called the Gongyo, practice chanting Nammyoho-renge-kyo to the object of worship known as the Gohonzon, and engage in proselytizing called Shakubuku.

NSA is far from being some exotic, restricted Oriental religion, however. It embraces executives as well as construction workers, the troubled as well as the content, all of whose efforts are directed toward a goal of achieving world peace through individual happiness.

NSA, which stands for the Nichirenshoshu Sokagakkai Academy, is a loosely structured worldwide laymen's organization which has experienced steady growth and numbers about 500,000 members in the United States

An offshoot of Buddhism, NSA holds discussion meetings, conventions, cultural shows, university seminars and guidance tours in an attempt to spread the word.

"NSA is based on humanism, and the dignity of human life," says Bill Olson, a staff member at a Denver NSA community center. "We feel it is a philosophy that has an answer to just about all the problems of society today

"Our members may have a problem that they want to change, whether it be health, financial or whatever. Or they may have certain personal goals they wish to achieve, such as in education. By improving themselves, they're improving society.

the Christian community," he says.

He and the other church thinkers, participating in a recent conference sponsored here by the United Church of Christ on problems of church growth, all are advocates of applying religious principles in action to improve social conditions.

But they noted a balancing trend in mainline denominations — those which have been most active on social issues and whose membership has sagged to restore more emphasis on the rudimentary task of nourishing of basic concepts and principles.

Dr. Paul Harrison, a Baptist and professor of religious studies at Penn State University, says the "first purpose of the church is worship," which means developing a "relationship with the eternal" as a basis for viewing secondary issues. However, he says the drama of worship has been 'lost in the modern world," and with that "dramatic enactment of religion being lost, the heart of religion has been eclipsed.' 'When the black folk walk into the white church they say, 'You don't have anything going here," he observed. 'And I think they're right.' The Rev. Dr. Max Stackhouse, professor of ethics at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre, Mass., said the vitality of any group, religious or secular, depends on some kind of "doctrine at its core."

Lutheran measures attacked

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)- Newlyadopted measures for squelching nonconformity in a major Lutheran denomination today were described by opponents as deepening internal strife and potentially rupturing the church.

They said that if injunctions passed here by the convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod are imposed on local units, it will provoke an open split. "It would be tantamount to our being thrown out," said the Rev. Dr. Rudolph Ressmeyer of New York, president of the Atlantic District, one of several districts ordered to cease diverging from central administration policy. Both they and a countrywide organization of moderates set up to resist demands of the church's conservative leadership Wednesday were ordered restrained or disavowed.

The convention told supporters of the moderates' organization Evangelical Lutherans in Mission — to disassociate themselves from it as long as it carries on "schismatic functions, or else get out of the church.

The group's leaders "are failing to cooperate" and are "giving offense in their conduct." the convention

Church sponsors area 'open-air' Sunday services

The Center Christian Church of Washington C.H. may not have a permanent building to hold its services yet but the congregation is making the best of the situation by sponsoring 'open-air" services during the summer months.

According to Conrad G. Bower, minister of the church, the open-air services offer church-goers several choices in their worship by conducting worship services outside at area residences.

Morning worship and Bible School classes are held each Sunday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Garringer on U.S. 35 West at the Fayette-Greene County line while youth meetings and evening worship are held near Washington C.H. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roll on

Bower said the church-goers may either attend the services as a "drive-in worship program" or in the conventional congregational seating style. Those who prefer to remain in their cars and those who bring along folding chairs to join the congregation on the lawn will each be able to hear the entire service through the use of a powerful amplifying system, Bower added.

He said the congregation is presently seeking property to build a church in a permanent location but will enjoy the advantages and flexibility of open-air services until the church can be built.

Bower invited the public to attend the informal services, which are held at 9:30 a.m. Sundays and 7:30 p.m. Sunday evenings.

declared by a 601-473 vote following a long and emotionally charged floor debate

One of the moderate bloc's leaders, the Rev. Thomas Spitz of Manhassett. N.Y., pleaded against the censure and said: "If we are forced to pursue our purposes outside the Synod, it is your choice, not ours.'

Nazarene pastor to attend meeting

The Rev. Dale M. Orihood, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene on Ohio 41 SW, will be attending the annual convention of Southwestern Ohio Nazarenes at the Cincinnati Convention Center July 16-19.

The Rev. H.B. London, minister of Salem First Church in Salem, Ore., one of the seven largest Nazarene Sunday Schools, will be guest speaker for the opening Sunday School convention at 10 a.m. July 16. The succeeding days will be spent in discussing World Missions with the

Those present were relatives and Little Troy Alan Monroe and Monte Jo Miller assisted the guest of honor in the opening of gifts.

Riding Club plans picnic

The monthly meeting of the Happy Trails Riding Club was a swim party and potluck supper at Cedarhurst with Sandy Rhoads as hostess on July 7th. Mrs. Freddie LeBeau extended an invitation from Mt. Sterling to all club members to ride in the parade to be held at 12:00 noon Saturday, July 12th. All members planning to ride will meet at the school house in Mt. Sterling at 11:30 a.m.

All members expressed an interest in purchasing club jackets. It is suggested that a bake sale be held to help offset the cost of the jackets. A committee composed of Julie Gordon, Nina Huffman, Phyllis LeBeau and Betty Riggilo are to make plans for the sale. There will be a special committee meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, July 14th at Julie Gordon's.

The next trail ride is planned for July 26-27 at Tarhollow State Park.

Marriage announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. Virginia E. Craft of Cincinnati and Mr. Robert Bush of New Holland. The double ring ceremony took place June 1 in Coburn Methodist Church in Zanesville with the Rev. Chester Imahausen officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Forrest Briggs and the late Mr. Briggs of Zanesville, former residents of the New Holland area. The groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bush, also of New Holland.

Mrs. Charles (Kaye) Free of New Holland was matron of honor for her mother and Mr. Trevor Bush of Indianapolis, Ind., served as his father's best man.

The wedding reception was held in the church social rooms. Granddaughters of the bride, the Misses Christine Landman, Melanie and Lisa Free, and the groom's granddaughter Lorre Black, all of New Holland, and nieces of the bride, Pamela and Kerry Ann Briggs of Zanesville, were the hostesses. Lori Landman and Kerri Black attended the guest book. Ushers were nephews of the bride, Douglas and Gig Briggs. Another nephew, John Briggs II, Beauforte, S.C., took the pictures. The bride's grandsons, Timothy and Rusty Landman, lighted the candles.

Following a trip to Virginia Beach, Ocean City, Md., Washington, D.C. and Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Bush are residing on a farm west of New Holland, Rt. 22.

Mr. Bush is a retired professional farm manager. Mrs. Bush is a 20-year employe of General Electric and currently employed at the office of the Lamp Distribution Center in Cin-

Lioness Club swim party annual affair

Washington C.H. Lioness Club members enjoyed a "fun day" when they met at the home of Mrs. Robert Willis, Bush Rd. on Tueseay. A bright sun and good friends made a perfect atmosphere for the annual swim party, until later in the evening, when rain appeared.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Willis, chairman, Mrs. Robert Yates, Mrs. Pat Riley, Mrs. Gary Thompson and Mrs. Donald Bennett. The meal of barbecued spareribs and sweet corn was catered by Miss Maxine Gilmerr.

Mrs. Ralph Hyer, president, conducted a brief meeting when Mrs. Donald Crabtree, a new member, was introduced and presented a Lioness Club pin. It was also announced that Mrs. Charles Zamjahn will be moving to New Orleans, La., soon.

A 'make your own hat parade' was enjoyed. Tail Twister Mrs. Mike Flynn was the judge. Named the most original was Mrs. Wesley Cox; the funniest, Mrs. Yates; and the prettiest, Mrs. Riley. Other games were cancelled due to the rain, except the water balloon contest. All were winners.

A Board of Directors meeting is planned for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 15, at the home of Mrs. Emerson Marting. The next meeting is Aug. 12 at the Washington Country Club, when golf and 'games day' will be observed.

Ruppert faces sentence hearing

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)- James U. Ruppert faces a hearing next Monday in Butler Common Pleas Court to determine whether he will receive life imprisonment, or the death penalty, after being covicted of the mass murder of 11 members of his family during an Easter gathering

The hearing will be held before the same three-judge panel which found Ruppert guilty Thursday after a three-

That verdict was by a 2-1 decision and any vote following the coming hearing must be unanimous before a death sentence can be imposed.

Presiding Judge Fred B. Cramer dissented in the original verdict.

The circumstances to be considered at the coming hearing are whether the victim induced or facilitated the action; whether he committed it under duress, coercion, or provocation, or whether the offense was the product of the offender's psychosis or mental deficiency although such condition was insufficient to establish a defense of

Distritubtion of the estimated $343,000 estate of Leonard Ruppert Jr. and Charity Ruppert, mother of James and Leonard, is not expected while an appeal is pending

Hamilton attorney Louis Hofstadter said it would probably be another 15 months before the estate would be ready for distribution.

According to Ohio law, a convicted murderer cannot inherit or take any part in the estate of the person killed. Hofstadter said the law considers the person convicted to have preceded the deceased in death.

He said in this case the estate would be divided among the surviving maternal and paternal aunts and uncles of Leonard Ruppert Jr.

Property in the name of Alma Ruppert, Leonard's wife, would be inherited by her mother and father.

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) - Nineyear-old Kent Wyant, whose deaf-mute parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wyant. have taken in a Vietnamese refugee family, summed it up.

"It's great," said Kent, who suddenly found himself with four new playmates. "It's a little crowded, but none of us mind.'

His 26-year-old sister, Rita Wyant, made the arrangements, when, as a stewardess for a charter airline taking part in the refugee airlift, "I realized that I was personally going to have to do something about it.

Miss Wyant has embarked on a campaign to find more sponsors for refugees she met and befriended during her flights from Guam to Honolulu. She said she "begged" to be allowed to help in the airlift because "I knew what these people would face. I just had to go out and do something to

Despite the larger household, things seem to be working out well at the Wyants. Duong started work Thursday at a local aluminum siding company, and neighbors have given "pretty good support," according to Kent.

Miss Wyant said her parents are happy with the arrangement as well. "It's probably better for them than for a hearing couple," she said. "They're very good with signs and gestures and there's no language problem.

'We were just playing cards," Kent said of the children. "I can't speak Vietnamese, but they speak to me. They went to English school in the camp and they're learning fast.

Malpractice bill battle looms

Senate is expected to vote next week on medical malpractice legislation, but a major battle is almost certain over proposed limitations on lawyers fees and total recovery by victims.

A Senate insurance subcommitee voted 2-1 Thursday to return a heavily amended bill to the full Elections, Financial Insitutions and Insurance panel.

However, several key changes, beefing up guaranteed protection in the bill, will be challenged in full committee hearings before the plan is recommended for floor action.

For starters, the three-member subpanel reinserted graduated fee limits on contingency rates often charged by lawyers for victims in malpractice cases. Under contingency rates, lawyers collect percentages of settlements they win, but get nothing in cases they lose.

"I just think it's unwise and unhelpful at this point to get involved in this controversy," said Sen. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, an attorney who voted against the amendment as well as the entire subcommittee report.

'I don't think there's any evidence before this committee that the contigent fee arrangements contribute to excessive verdicts," he said. "We're seriously jeopardizing the prospect for this bill for any eventual favorable (by the consideration

The House had removed the mandated fee limits, which are bitterly opposed by the Ohio State Bar ssociation and directed the state

The subcommittee has also clamped $500,000 ceiling on total legal recovery by victims in malpractice cases. The original bill had placed no limitation on total recovery, although it contained a $200,000 cap on settlements involving pain and suffering

The senators also increased surcharges that could be assessed against physicians and hospitals to assure the solvency of the guaranteed protection insurance pool.

The pool, called the Joint Underwriters Association, would be made up of all Ohio insurance companies offering malpractice, accident or COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The liability coverage. It would be designed to offer last resort coverage to physicians unable to acquire insurance through private firms.

Sens. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, both nonlawyers, voted in favor of most of the major changes, with Dennis dissenting beaten in three staight games.

Those are brave words for a team still in the midst of the season, but the Reds have reason to exude confidence as they near the all-star break next

During a highly successful June campaign, the Reds took the lead for good on June 7 and have rapidly padded their advantage

The team hit .285 during last month's games and four players currently are hitting over .300

Joe Morgan, who leads the team with a .349 average, hit .374 during June, while Johnny Bench hit .316 last month to lift his average to .298. George Foster hit .317 in June and is now batting .298, while Ken Griffey's current average of .315 has been fattened by a .317 average during last month's trips to the plate.

Four of their starters- Bench, Rose, Morgan and Dave Concepcion-will be playing in next Tuesday's All-Star

Many baseball observers shook their heads sadly when Reds ace pitcher Don Gullett was sidelined with a broken thumb. Without Gullett, the Reds have won 17 of 21 ballgames.

Many of their relief pitchers have been rewarded with victories as the Reds are now 9-3 in extra-inning contests and have not lost in five extra-inning affairs since June 1. 'There ain't no way we can lose this thing no more," said Anderson. "We can only give it away.'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — No offense, Joe DiMaggio; it was just another night's work for Willie Stargell.

'I know I've got two games tomorrow and that milestones aren't going to be much help," Stargell said after the Pirate victory

"When you're playing you just have to grind it out," he added.

Stargell ground it out against the Dodgers with a run-scoring single that broke a 1-1 tie and a two-run insurance homer off Dodger reliever Mike Marshall. The victory was the 10th in 13 games for the Pirates, who moved six games ahead of the idle Philadelphia Phillies in the National League East. The Dodgers dropped 10 games behind the first-place Cincinnati Reds in the Cubs 3. Padres 1

Ray Burris stopped San Diego on eight hits and Chicago scored a pair of unearned runs in the second inning en route to victory over the Padres.

With two out in the second inning, Manny Trillo walked and Steve Swisher doubled. Burris then grounded to shortstop Enzo Hernandez, who threw wild past first as both runners scored.

Burris had a three-hit shutout going until there were two out in the sixth inning. Bobby Tolan and Willie McCovey both singled and Dave Winfield followed with a run-scoring

Louis wins area speaking contest

David Louis, son of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Louis, 3770 White Road, captured top honors in the senior boys division of the area safety speaking contest held recently.

Louis' topic, "When You're Hot," covered safety limits when a fire occurs in the home. The 17-year-old Louis emphasized proper fire control procedures, knowing when and how to call the fire department, and panic prevention. Louis earned the right to represent Fayette County in the area contest by winning the senior boys division in Fayette County in June.

Fayette County's girl winner, Cheryl Blue, was unable to compete in the area contest since she is participating with 23 other Miami Trace High School students on a summer field trip.

The area safety speaking contest is an annual 4-H event sponsored by the Westfield Co. of Westfield Center, Ohio. Arthur Dannecker Jr., vice president of public relations for the Westfield Co. was present for the contest and presented each contestant with a bronze 4-H trophy and certificate.

Sixteen teenage 4-H'ers from 10 counties did their part in creating safety awareness by participating in the area 4-H safety speaking contest held at the Terrrace Lounge in Washington C. H.

Winner in the girls division was Lisa Anthony from Madison County. Alternate winners were Craig Corry, Greene County, and Mary Alice Cripe, Clark County.

The two area winners will advance to Academy auditorium in Columbus. the state contest, which will be held State winers will receive a trip to the

Kent State trial in recess

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Claims for $46 million in damages were dropped Thursday against a former Ohio National Guard mechanic after he testified he was not in danger when fellow troops fired on student demonstrators at Kent State University

Earlier, two officers at the time told federal jurors guardsmen were being threatened by protestors gaining on them as they retreated from a practice football field where they had been showered with rocks and other debris.

The ex-mechanic, Robert D. Hatfield, said he fired in the air after other guardsmen started shooting. thought there had been an order and I didn't hear it," he said.

Hatfield's dismissal reduced the number of defendants to 41, including 37 present or former guardsmen. The others are Gov. James Rhodes, who ordered the troops to the campus during a weekend of rioting sparked by U.S. military activity in Cambodia, and three exstate officials.

The damages claims are being pressed by victims of the shootings and their families. The 13-second volley of guard gunfire killed four students and wounded nine as the guard sought to break up a noontime campus rally May

Then 2nd Lt. Alexander Stevenson said the troops were constantly glancing over their shoulders and sidestepping their way up a campus slope because of the rate at which demonstrators were overtaking them. He said guardsmen were being pelted with rocks, although he admitted under cross-examination he had not been struck nor had he seen anyone struck by a missile during the last couple of minutes before the shooting.

Capt. Howard R. Fallon, then also a second lieutenant, said the demonstrators were "almost animalistic" and that the danger was greater than any he had encountered in civil disturbances the four years before.

He said the crowd noise increased as demonstrators followed guardsmen up the hill. "The chant became: "Kill the pigs," he said.

Fallon said the sounds were distorted

in a "man-made canyon" of a depression in the hill between a tall classroom building and a dormitory.

Later, lawvers for the victims used that testimony to discredit Fallon's contention that he could identify the first two or three shots of the burst of gunfire as coming from weapons of smaller caliber than the .30-caliber M1 rifles or .45-cal. pistols carried by guardsmen.

Fallon said he was struck by flying objects just before the shooting, but like Stevenson, denied he fired that sunny spring afternoon.

Measure sent to Senate

House votes to repeal state fair trade laws

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's fair trade laws, which opponents contend take $80 million a year out of the pockets of Ohio consumers, came a step closer to repeal Thursday.

The House voted 75-13 to repeal the laws and sent the measure to the Senate.

The House's vote came just before the lower chamber recessed for the weekend. The Senate was scheduled to meet today for a brief session, which was expected to include a vote on a bill banning age discrimination in wages. Sponsors of the fair trade repeal legislation told the House on Thursday the laws are obsolete relics of the Depression.

Once valuable, the laws now do nothing but gouge American consumers out of $2.1 billion to $3 billion a year, the sponsors say.

But others argued the laws still serve to fix prices," said Rep. William G. their original purpose, protecting the small businessman from the predatory competition of large retailers who can undercut on prices.

Fair trade laws allow manufacturers to set minimum retail prices on consumer goods, such as television sets and appliances.

Under Ohio's law, if a manufacturer can get one retailer to sign a fair trade agreement, then all other retailers in the state are forced to sell the item at the minimum price or above.

If the retailer tries to sell the item below the fair trade price, he can be sued by the manufacturer and forced to pay damages, even if the retailer never signed a contract to sell at the fair trade price.

'Basically, what fair trade laws do is

McCarty succeeds Morrow

Jeff school principal selected village mayor

JEFFERSONVILLE - After serving Mountcastle's appointment will teras a village council member for the past four years, Gordon L. McCarty has been named to succeed Don Morrow as Jeffersonville's mayor.

Morrow had announced his resignation several months ago because he is leaving the Jeffersonville area. The superintendent of the East Clinton School District near Sabina, Morrow said he felt an obligation to reside within the school district. George Reedy, president of Jeffersonville council, who was to assume the mayor's post, resigned due to ill health, and McCarty was selected for the position. He is principal of Jeffersonville Elementary School. Eddie McBee, a second-year council member, was chosen to replace Reedy as village council president.

The selection of McCarty and McBee to serve as mayor and council president left two vacancies on the council, and these were filled by Wayne Rayburn and Lee Mountcastle respectively. Rayburn will serve through December, 1977 while minate Dec. 31.

They join Fred Stires, Richard Thornberry and Marvin Brown as village council members.

In the wake of the death of George Porter some two weeks ago, Harlan Hoppes was approved as president of the board of public affairs. Nelson Baker was selected to fill the board's vacancy

In other action, council members approved placing a renewal of the village's 2.9 mill general operating levy on the November ballot, and approved the final draft of the 1976 budget. The budget will now be submitted to the Fayette County Board of Commissioners for final approval. Council also moved to erect stop signs at the intersection of Vine and George streets as well as on Woodsview Drive near the village swimming pool.

A budget for the expenditure of federal money from revenue sharing was also approved. The greatest part of the monies will be used for street

Ford campaign cash illegal?

Batchelder said the laws would be illegal except for a specific exemption in the federal anti-trust laws. He said bills are pending in Congress to remove that exemption.

Rep. Mike Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, said the bill could be the most important piece of consumer legislation before the General Assembly in its present session.

He said the law allows Ohio retailers to set prices 18 to 27 per cent higher than prices in states where there is free competing for the title of 1975 Fayette County Junior Fair Queen. The queen will be crowned July 20 to reign over the week of fair activities.

For example, he said, a Sony color television set costing $510 in Ohio costs $449 in free competition states while golf clubs costing $220 in Ohio can be bought for $136 elsewhere.

The three finalists, Regina Roush, Tammy Walters and Jomi Warner, were selected after being interviewed with nine other contestants this week by a three-member screening committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Corcoran of Wilmington and Mrs. Linda Hyel of Springfield.

Cororan is the 4-H extension agent for Clinton County and Mrs. Hyel serves as home economics agent for Clark County in Springfield.

To have been eligible, contestants were required to be 16 years of age by January 1 but not older than 19; a member of either 4-H, Future Homemakers of America, Future Farmers of America, Junior Achievement, Girl Scouts or Campfire Girls: and could not have served as the Junior Fair queen or an attendant previously.

Each contestant was judged on the basis of 20 per cent for activities, 30 per cent for poise and personality and 50 per cent for overall personal appearance.

The winner from the three finalists will be chosen from ballots cast by Junior Fair exhibitors. Voting begins

Coronation ceremonies will be held at 5:30 p.m. in the grandstand on the Fayette County Fairgrounds July 20. Jane Ann Kiger, president of the Junior Fair Board, will present the opening remarks and introduction of the finalists. She will also crown the new queen while the 1974 Fayette County Junior Fair Queen Teresa Jordan of New Holland presents the bouquet of roses to her successor.

Miss Jordan reflected on her years as Junior Fair queen as "a learning experience.

"I learned a lot and it was a great opportunity to be fair queen and to meet so many people," she said as she prepares to relinquish her crown.

Teresa said besides handing out Service, Dramatic Arts, Symphonic Three Washington C.H. area girls are trophies at the various county fair events during the Fayette County Fair last year, she also represented Fayette County in the county fair queens contest at the Ohio State Fair and was introduced at several area county fairs.

The 18-year-old 1975 graduate of Chillicothe High School who plans to enter nursing and pursue a career working with small children, advised prospective queen candidates to "just be a friend and always have a smile on your face.'

While the 1975 queen will succeed Miss Jordan, the runnersup will replace the 1974 court consisting of Lenora Slaven, 19, of 1292 Dayton Ave., and Debra Frazier, 19, of New Holland.

Regina Gale Roush, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Roush of Jeffersonville. A 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, Regina has been active in the Silly Stitchers 4-H club as a junior leader, is treasurer of the Fayette County Junior Fair Board, and president of the Camreel company in Junior Achievement. She was also her senior class treasurer, a member of the Student Council, vice president of Y-

Band and Future Homemakers of America.

Tammy Walters is the 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marcum of 4511 Miami Trace Road. She will be a senior at Miami Trace High School where she has been active in various school activities including cheerleading, Student Council, a class officer and Y-Teens. Tammy is also a member of Junior Leadership, is an advisor and officer in both the Wayne Progressive Farmers and Wayne Fashionaires 4-H clubs and is active in swimming and diving.

The third finalist is Jomi Layne Warner, a 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School. She is 17 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Warner of New Holland. Jomi has been freshmen class president, sophomore class treasurer, junior and senior representative to the Student Council, secretary for the South Central Ohio League Student Council and a member of American Field Service, Future Teachers of America, senior Folksingers. choir, Homemakers, Y-Teens, 4-H and a four-Teens and member of American Field year member of Junior Leadership.

School aid formula faces obstacles

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The House Finance Committee has resumed hearings on a state school aid formula, but the road to eventual approval of a genuine equalization plan is still blocked by major obstacles

Already beset by serious problems with time running short, the panel heard a new proposal Thursday, that could cost as much as $13.1 million in additional funds, said the state education department, if it is included. Cleveland School Superintendent

Paul Briggs asked the committee to provide for programs dealing with "racial isolation" of minority students to try to develop a better racial mix. Briggs said $50 per minority student should be appropriated for all districts in the state where at least 15 per cent of minority groups. "What I want to do in Cleveland is avoid a situation like Boston," he told the lawmakers.

the student population comes from

The big city educators said the programs would be designed to bring together whites and minority students-particularly blacks-for special learning projects. He said many black Cleveland children attend schools "without a single white student" from kindergarten through high school.

Asst. State Superintendent Paul Spayde said that 262,215 minority students in 37 local districts would qualify for such a program at an estimated cost of $13.1 million in a single school year.

Briggs pointed out that not all eligible students could realistically be expected to participate in projects, lessening the actual cost of his proposal.

He did not suggest a source of additional revenue, but stressed that funding should not come from basic aid or money already appropriated for other categorial programs, such as municipal overburden. Finance Chairman Myrl H.

Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, was doubtful that the minority program could be financed for the current biennium. The committee will begin considering amendments next Tuesday which are almost certain to strip out several key sections of the bill which passed the Senate last May. Sources close to the Democratic-controlled panel said it would definitely remove a provision eliminating some property tax rollbacks and language which critics charge would give teachers an upper hand in labor negotiations.

"That battle is over," one knowledgeable committee source said, "but then you get to the point of dealing with situations where some school districts would lose money in the new formula.

The formula, which bases state aid on local property tax effort, has been opposed by school officials from Toledo, Dayton and Cincinnati who contended their districts would not be adequately compensated.

Spayde has promised to present the committee with computer printouts on Tuesday, calculating what each of Ohio's 616 districts would receive under the equal yield plan.

Meanwhile, Shoemaker assigned a $577 million capital improvements budget bill to subcommittee. The construction budget was removed from the overall state spending plan, approved, with some exceptions, by Gov. Rhodes.

"They (the administration) admitted yesterday (Wednesday) that there's some corrections and updating to do on this thing," Shoemaker said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sixpassenger sedan and station wagon would become a thing of the past if the Administration said it is giving automobile fueleconomy standards proposed in Congress become law, executives of the nation's three largest auto makers say

And they said requiring them to reduce the average size of their cars would be an unwarranted intrusion on freedom of choice and would double the auto industry

The executives testified Thursday as the Senate Finance Committee began hearings on a House-passed bill that would limit oil imports and require auto makers to produce a fleet of cars that average 20 miles per gallon by 1980 and 28 m.p.g. by 1985.

By comparison, 1975-model cars average 14 m.p.g. in gasoline use.

Elliott M. Estes, president of General Motors Corp., said he wondered why the legislation places the burden of fuel conservation on automobiles, when they consume only 13 per cent of the nation's energy

The agency said it was not accusing the companies of any wrongdoing and said that the overcharges, if any, may have resulted from differences in the information from which the firms and the FEA calculated allowable prices.

Standard Oil of Indiana, $27,653,000; Atlantic Richfield, $24,115,000; Sun Oil, $17,649,000; Mobil, $14,167,000; Phillips Petroleum, $13,118,000; Union Oil, m.p.g. standard for our entire $4,380,000; Continental Oil, $2,748,000; production, the vast majority would Standard Oil of California, $2,082,000; Ashland Oil, $796,000; Getty Oil, $497,000; and Texaco, $366,000

Food price rises may be slower

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. grain harvest should be so huge this year that retail food prices through late 1976 will increase at a slower rate than they have in the past two years, government officials say

Less clear, however, was how much impact a possible largescale purchase of U.S. corn and wheat by the Soviet Union would have at the supermarket checkout counter.

In a report Thursday, the Agriculture Department estimated the 1975 corn harvest at a record six billion-plus bushels, or 153.6 million tons, up 30 per cent from last year's weatherplagued output. The wheat harvest is anticipated at nearly 2.2 billion bushels, or 59.5 million tons, 22 per cent higher than the record 1974 production.

The department's director of economics, Don Paarlberg, said such bumper crops would "tend to dampen food prices through the late months of and 1974.

1976," when another harvest would be

The lower cost for livestock feed also would trigger larger output of meat, poultry and dairy products and consequent lower costs to the consumer next winter and through 1976, Paarlberg said.

But he cauttoned that there could be a temporary shortening of the meat supply if producers decide to take advantage of a huge corn crop and have animals fattened at feedlots rather than sending them to slaughter directly from the pasture, as many have been doing in the past year or so.

Paarlberg said that over-all the new estimates for corn and wheat mean that retail food prices may be held to an average gain of 6 to 8 per cent over the course of 1975. By comparison, they had soared by 14.5 per cent in both 1973

Stock list pulls back

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back today on the news of another prime rate increase by New York's First National City Bank.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off a fraction, and losers took a 5-4 lead over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

At the opening bell, Citibank announced an increase in its prime rate from 7 to 71/4 per cent-its second quarter-point boost in two weeks in the key rate on loans to large corporations. There was concern that other banks would move soon to match the in-

Watergate time cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled today that Bernard L. Barker need not serve the remaining five months of his jail term for the original Watergate break-in. Sirica also reduced to "time served" the jail terms of three others in the original Watergate sentencing. But Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank Sturgis and Virgilio Gonzalez had all been paroled before Sirica acted. All four men had lost attempts to appeal their convictions in the Supreme Barker had pleaded guilty for his part in the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters June 17, 1972.

Sirica initially sentenced him to 18 months to 6 years and until today he had actually spent a year and 19 days in the prison.

The effect of Sirica's order is to lop off the five remaining months of the former Miami real estate man's minimum sentence.

he disclosed to Senate Watergate investigators the existence of then-President Richard M. Nixon's White House tape recording system. Tapes from the system, which recorded Nixon's conversations with his top aides, were instrumental in forcing his resignation on Aug. 9, 1974. In an interview on the CBS-TV "Morning News," Prouty said he had "no doubt" about Butterfield's employment by the CIA. NBC News said it also had learned of Butterfield's CIA connections. A congressional source told The and elsewhere.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former Associated Press that Prouty disclosed Butterfield's CIA role to investigators for the House intelligence committee. The committee is investigating the CIA and other intelligence agencies. But the source said the investigators have no documentary evidence to support Prouty's assertion. Butterfield, who was named head of the Federal Aviation administration after he left the White House, was not available for comment.

But his wife called Prouty's description of her husband's role elligence committee in recent days. "absolutely false ... (a) ludicrous Prouty was called to appear before allegation." She added: "It would be absolutely laughable ...'

> Prouty's comments came just one day after CIA Director William E. Colby denied as "outrageous nonsense" earlier statements by Reps. Robert W. Kasten, R-Wis., and Ronald V. Doubt North Viets really want detente

WASHINGTON (AP) - American while the rest are declared dead but officials are highly skeptical that North Vietnam is sincere in its professed desire for normal relations with the help account for the missing and to

Officials offer this assessment in explaining why the United States has namese Prime Minister Pham Van not responded affirmatively to a North Vietnamese overture to Washington, made just a few weeks after the whether the statement attached con-American-backed regime in Saigon surrendered on April 29.

One reason for the American skepticism is that Hanoi conditioned establishment of ties on U.S. agreement to provide Vietnam with reconstruction aid, a demand which U.S. officials say North Vietnam knows is "completely unacceptable."

In unofficial circles, the theory has been advanced that the North Vietnamese proposal may be serious because of a desire to use the United States as a counterweight to Soviet and Chinese influence in Southeast Asia. However, competent officials say there is no evidence to support this view.

In anticipation of the establishment of a civilian government in South Vietnam in the near future, the United States has been negotiating with an unidentified foreign country to represent American interests in Saigon. No similar arrangement in contemplated for Hanoi.

Still, the United States has not ruled out entirely some sort of relationship with North Vietnam once the bitterness accumulated over the past two decades

In a speech last month, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said that the American attitude toward Hanoi and other Communist regimes in Indochina "will be influenced by their conduct toward their neighbors and their attitude toward us.

Washington's relationship with Hanoi is expected to be shaped largely by Hanoi's policy toward the 2,300 Americans still unaccounted for in Indochina since before the 1973 cease-

About 900 of them, including 30 civilians, are still listed as missing, their bodies unrecovered. Under the Paris agreement, Hanoi pledged to return the remains of the dead.

A recent statement by North Viet-Dong indicated a willingness to discuss the issue. It was not clear, however, ditions to discussions, and State Department officials say they are waiting for a less ambiguous offer from Hanoi before pursuing the matter.

Bingo bill strikes snag COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)-A proposed constitutional amendment to legalize charitable bingo games was sent to a legislative conference committee Thursday after the House disagreed with Senate amendments to the proposal.

The Senate, in passing the resolution, specified it would apply to bingo games only and not to lotteries in general. It also changed the bill to apply specifically to charitable ganizations, rather than the House's wording of nonprofit organizations. The House rejected the changes 1-85 with Rep. Patrick A. Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, the only member voting to concur with the Senate. There was no debate before the vote. The conference committee will attempt to draft a compromise version. If that is approved by both houses, the amendment would be placed on the November general election ballot.

"My personal view is that President Ford and Vice President Rockefeller are the best ticket for our party," McGough said. "Insofar as I know, there is no formal activity against Vice President Rockefeller or for Gov. Reagan.'

Meanwhile, the State Senate took the first step Thursday toward eliminating Ohio's "bedsheet ballot" whereby delegates to national conventions are voted on individually rather than by

The Senate approved 32-0 and sent the House a resolution aimed at long lists of delegates which often force election officials to resort to paper ballots to accomodate all of the names.

As originally drafted, the proposal would have provided that voters could cast ballots for an entire delegate slate by voting for the presidential nominee candidate to which the delegates are pledged.

Sponsor Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, said he changed the measure to simply authorize the legislature to

Opinion And Comment

Guidance for parents

Many parents of teen-agers find themselves caught in a dilemma so far as rock music concerts are concerned. They feel misgivings about the impact of these throbbing primitively travaganzas, with their overtones of degeneracy and vice. At the same time, they think perhaps they are wrong to inhibit their offspring.

The dilemma is not made any easier by reports about the rock groups' effect on their audiences. For example, a commentator's observations concerning the Rolling Stones' opening concert in New York:". . .the music is there like your heartbeat or pulse - viscerally...

they sacrifice the subtleties of their music to concentrate on volume and visceral appeal." Moreover, "At the heart of the spectacle is the figure of Mick Jagger" (who shows) "complete disdain for the normal sexual and artistic conventions."

Then there's the knockout new Scottish group, the Bay City Rollers, described by the impresario who will book them for their first U.S. appearance as "the most huge, huge thing for young people since the Beatles." Sid Bernstein says of them: "They're clean cut, don't smoke or drink and discourage drugs. . . . They play good, happy, good-time music. . . It's bubblegum; it's for the young."

Bernstein additionally informs the breath-bated public that "it probably will mean barricades in the street when they come here. They attract frenzied, devoted crowds. Their fans are young, 8 to 16 or 17, and all female.

Making due allowance for puffery, it sounds frenetic enough. Anyway, if things get too bubblegummy the kids can always look in on the Stones for some of that visceral appeal and a taste of Jagger's "disdain for the normal sexual and artistic conventions." It gives worried parents a choice of what they'll say yes to and hope for the best.

balance of payments. Oil has saved the West. With raw materials and Nigeria, not to mention all those sandy energy getting a big edge in the sosheikdoms around the Persian Gulf. The Shah of Iran makes Cyrus the Great look like a piker. Rhodesia has two-thirds of the world's chrome, and if the ore can't be sold directly to the nations that abide by the UN boycott of the Rhodesians the cynical Russians stand ready to buy it and "broker" it a monopoly price to the honest fools of called terms of trade, the wealth of the world is being subtly diffused to the most unlikely places.

The latest beneficiary of the changing order is the poverty-riddled Dominican Republic, which shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with even poorer Haiti. Just short of five centuries ago, in 1494, Indians told Columbus's Spaniards about a trace of yellow metal at a spot high in the Dominican mountains. It wasn't much, and it didn't take long for the visible metal to be worked out. The years went by, and various attempts to get at the gold, silver, copper and zinc that existed in a complicated chemical "lock" in the earth of the Pueblo Viejo Mine were no more successful than the French efforts to construct a canal across Panama. Not even the bloody tyrant Trujillo, who could force Dominicans to work for him and the rest of his strong-armed elite for next to nothing, was able to get anything out of

Pueblo Viejo. More time passed and Trujillo disappeared, the victim of assassins who, according to several witnesses, used a cache of weapons deposited by the CIA. Lyndon Johnson sent in the Marines to keep the Dominican Republic from becoming a second Cuba, and a mild professorial type, Joaquin Balaguer, took charge as El Presidente in the capital city of Santo Domingo. But still the Dominican Republic was dirt poor. The next chapter in the story was written in Washington, D. C., where not all the power of the U.S. Treasury could hold the price of gold to the official $35 an ounce. The world was catching on to the fact that the U.S. paper dollar is not redeemable in anything more than an equivalent amount of paper. So the Rosario Resources Corporation, an American company that deals in Florida limestone, Georgia granite, Canadian and Texas oil and gas, with a few mining operations in Mexico and Central America to give it a background in gold prospecting, decided to have a look at the abandoned

Pueblo Viejo property. Pueblo Viejo might, so the geologists who sank 300-foot test drills into the unprepossessing Dominican mountain rocks and earth, pay off with gold going past $50 an ounce. But nobody could pan the gold out of the chemical lock. and there were no veins to be attacked with the sophisticated modern version of the pick. It would take something like a dozen 50-ton trucks, massive, drills, and a complicated combination of mechanical and chemical flow porcesses, with "cyanidation" doing a penultimate job, to get "dore" bullion (a mixture of gold and silver) in commercially significant quantities. The geologists think there are 30 million tons of gold-silver ore in the Pueblo Viejo oxide reserves, with an undetermined amount in the chemically more difficult sulphide deposits that exist beyond the oxides. But the end product of mining a ton of Dominican oxide ore must be expressed in fractions — 0.1258 ounces of gold and 0.76 ounces of silver per ton. Before it can be shipped to Switzerland by air for a final refinement, for which the Swiss pay off in 10 days, a 50-ton truckload of ore must be reduced to some six ounces of gold and 38 of silver for incorporation in a "dore" bar that you can lift in your two hands. The fact that so little can be valued at so much is one of the strangest anomalies of our second development in the case of Gov. James A. Rhodes and the notorious girlie magazine.

To put Pueblo Viejo in business, $41 million in capital was needed. Rosario looked for help. The Central Bank of the Dominican Republic was willing to take a 20 per cent interest in the project. Rosario could go for 40 per cent. The remaining 40 came from a most curious source: a self-made Idaho tycoon, J.R. Simplot, who made his fortune out of the potatoes he processes for bulk delivery to the McDonald hamburger people for French fries.

And what will the Dominican Republic get out of it all if it is as profitable as it is likely to be if gold remains at $165 an ounce? Some 45 per cent of profit automatically goes to the government in taxes. The Dominican Central Bank gets the dividends and its share of retained equity value on its 20 per cent of the stock. Dominicans trained in mechanized skills do virtually all of the mine work, at wages well above a Caribbean minimum.

Whether the "people" will benefit longer be a totally have-not nation.

First, the governor picked up a copy of Hustler magazine because it contained nude photographs of Jacqueline

Second, state officials found out that one of the other nudes in the magazine was an employe of the Department of Economic and Community Development.

James Duerk, department director, said, "Obviously, it isn't something you'd want to encourage among your employes. To say the least, it was embarrassing."

Rhodes explained his purchase of the historical interest in presidential

Identity of the state employe displayed in a five-page spread of nudes was not disclosed, but sources within the governor's office was thrown into turmoil when Duerk told Rhodes about the woman. The sources said Duerk was ordered to fire the woman, fed into the treasurer's computer.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's a who was hired in February and still is within her probationary period.

Duerk, denying Rhodes gave him any orders, would say only that he is looking into the circumstances surrounding the photos.

Some state government sources said officials feared a legal challenge if the employe is fired because of the photos. Altogether, the situation is confused.

State Treasurer Gertrude Donahey's $250,000 tax computer operation is going to get an old-fashioned dumbwaiter to help keep it in business. Frances Steigerwald, the treasurer's budget manager and purchasing agent, told the state Controlling Board the treasurer's office needs a 500-pound Columbus-based magazine by citing his capacity dumbwaiter costing $14,525. Its mission: To transport quickly large cartons of computer cards between the treasurer's office on the ninth and 10th floors of the State Office

> 'We need our own little elevator for quick transporting of computer cards,' said the budget manager.

When tax and other financial records of the state are brought into Mrs. Donahey's offices, record information is placed on computer cards. The cards are transported up to the 10th floor and

Dear ABIGAIL VAN BUREN Wife Rations Love

and He's Starved

DEAR ABBY: After 26 years of a fairly good marriage with three selfsufficient children and a paid for home, my wife and I sleep back to back-like two fireplace logs.

She rations her love as a "reward" for favors and withholds it as "punishment." And when it's given, which is seldom, it's with very little enthusasm (an understatement).

After nearly a year of this treatment, I'm considering breaking my flawless record of a faithful marriage to seek attention elsewhere.

I don't see much difference between a wife who trades her love for personal gain and a lady of the evening who sells her favors for money. I consider myself a darn good husband. Time is running

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: You're confusing sex with love. Love is a gift, not an obligation. Sex can be obtained at a price. Love cannot.

If you haven't discussed the state of your marriage with your wife, it's time you did. If you both want a better marriage, I recommend counseling. But if you're asking me for the green light to pursue the red light, I'm negative.

DEAR ABBY: I have written a letter to a very dear friend of mine, and my problem is I haven't the courage to send it. If you publish it, I am sure my friend will see it.

Here it is:

My dear, dear friend:

How else can I say it? You make me sick! No matter how I try to avoid the smoke of your cigarette, it's there, irritating my eyes, my sinuses, and getting into my lungs.

After a few hours with you, I'm literally ill. Sometimes when you blow your smoke directly at me, I turn my head or try to "fan" it away with my hand. You offer a small apology and move your cigarette-but you never put

Of course, my problem is that I am a coward. I like you too much to tell you to your face that you are selfish. I don't want to hurt your feelings, yet you go on hurting mine.

Do you know that your breath is always bad? And no amount of perfume can mask the smell of stale smoke that's constantly on your hands, clothing and hair. I love your company. Your sense of humor is priceless, and you've demonstrated your friendship to me many times. Yet, my doctor has told me I must avoid you. Can you believe it? Your smoking is making me ill. I miss you.

"SMOKED OUT" DEAR ABBY: We recently received an invitation to a golden wedding celebration. At the bottom was printed: "Your presence - not presents is requested.

Wasn't that a lovely way to say "No gifts, please"?

Today In History

By The Asssociated Press

Today is Friday, July 11, the 192nd day of 1975. There are 173 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1804, Vice President Aaron Burr mortally wounded the American statesman, Alexander Hamilton, in a pistol duel at Weehawken, N.J. On this date

In 1767, the sixth American president, John Quincy Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1810, the Napoleonic empire annexed Holland.

In 1814, a British fleet captured the town of Fastport, Maine.

In 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt announced he was available for an unprecedented fourth term.

In 1952, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated General Dwight Eisenhower for president.

In 1955, the new Air Force Academy was dedicated at Lowry Air Base in Colorado.

Ten years ago: The state of Louisiana imposed what amounted to undeclared martial law on Bogalusa to prevent a racial explosion. Five years ago: The Soviets were reported to have close to 300 giant SS-9 missile launchers ready for use or under construction. One year ago: President Antonio de Spinola of Portugal dismissed remaining members of his two-monthold civilian government to form an allmilitary regime. Today's birthdays: Actor Yul Brynner is 55 years old. Opera tenor Nicolai Gedda is 50. Thought for today: What art was to the Christian community," he says. He and the other church thinkers, participating in a recent conference sponsored here by the United Church of Christ on problems of church growth, all are advocates of applying religious principles in action to improve social conditions.

But they noted a balancing trend in mainline denominations — those which have been most active on social issues and whose membership has sagged to restore more emphasis on the rudimentary task of nourishing of basic concepts and principles.

Dr. Paul Harrison, a Baptist and professor of religious studies at Penn State University, says the "first purpose of the church is worship," which means developing a "relationship with the eternal" as a basis for viewing secondary issues.

However, he says the drama of worship has been "lost in the modern world." and with that "dramatic enactment of religion being lost, the heart of religion has been eclipsed.'

'When the black folk walk into the white church they say, 'You don't have anything going here,'" he observed. And I think they're right.

The Rev. Dr. Max Stackhouse, professor of ethics at Andover Newton Theological School in Newton Centre, Mass., said the vitality of any group, religious or secular, depends on some kind of "doctrine at its core."

Lutheran measures attacked

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)— Newlynonconformity in a major Lutheran denomination today were described by opponents as deepening internal strife and potentially rupturing the church.

They said that if injunctions passed here by the convention of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod are imposed on local units, it will provoke an open split. "It would be tantamount to our being thrown out," said the Rev. Dr. Rudolph

Church sponsors area 'open-air' Sunday services

The Center Christian Church of Washington C.H. may not have a permanent building to hold its services yet but the congregation is making the best of the situation by sponsoring "open-air" services during the summer months.

According to Conrad G. Bower, minister of the church, the open-air services offer church-goers several choices in their worship by conducting worship services outside at area residences.

Morning worship and Bible School classes are held each Sunday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Garringer on U.S. 35 West at the Fayette-Greene County line while youth meetings and evening worship are held near Washington C.H. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roll on U.S. 62 SW.

Bower said the church-goers may either attend the services as a "drive-in worship program" or in the conventional congregational seating style. Those who prefer to remain in their cars and those who bring along folding chairs to join the congregation on the lawn will each be able to hear the entire service through the use of a powerful amplifying system, Bower added.

He said the congregation is presently seeking property to build a church in a permanent location but will enjoy the advantages and flexibility of open-air services until the church can be built.

Bower invited the public to attend the informal services, which are held at 9:30 a.m. Sundays and 7:30 p.m. Sunday evenings.

declared by a 601-473 vote following a adopted measures for squelching long and emotionally charged floor debate

One of the moderate bloc's leaders, the Rev. Thomas Spitz of Manhassett, N.Y., pleaded against the censure and said: "If we are forced to pursue our purposes outside the Synod, it is your choice, not ours.'

Nazarene pastor to attend meeting

The Rev. Dale M. Orihood, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene on Ohio 41 SW, will be attending the annual convention of Southwestern Ohio Nazarenes at the Cincinnati Convention Center July 16-19.

The Rev. H.B. London, minister of Salem First Church in Salem, Ore., one of the seven largest Nazarene Sunday Schools, will be guest speaker for the opening Sunday School convention at 10 a.m. July 16.

The succeeding days will be spent in discussing World Missions with the Rev. Jack Riley, missionary to South Africa, and conducting the annual business for the Southwestern Ohio District, including the election of a district superintendent and delegates to the general assembly.

Songfest planned

The Samantha Free-Will Baptist Church at the Junction of U.S. 62 and Ohio 72 in Samantha will hold a songfest at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Special singing will be provided by the Christian Heir Singers of Columbus and the Pleasant Valley Four of Piketon. The Rev. Wiley B. Perkins, pastor, invites the public to attend

Ruppert faces sentence hearing

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)- James U. Ruppert faces a hearing next Monday in Butler Common Pleas Court to determine whether he will receive life imprisonment, or the death penalty, after being covicted of the mass murder of 11 members of his family during an Easter gathering.

The hearing will be held before the same three-judge panel which found Ruppert guilty Thursday after a three-

That verdict was by a 2-1 decision and any vote following the coming hearing must be unanimous before a death sentence can be imposed.

Presiding Judge Fred B. Cramer dissented in the original verdict.

The circumstances to be considered at the coming hearing are whether the victim induced or facilitated the action; whether he committed it under duress, coercion, or provocation, or whether the offense was the product of the offender's psychosis or mental deficiency although such condition was insufficient to establish a defense of torney H.J. Bressler, who said such a motion would have to be filed within 14 days after the verdict was signed.

Distritubtion of the estimated $343,000 estate of Leonard Ruppert Jr. and Charity Ruppert, mother of James and Leonard, is not expected while an appeal is pending.

Hamilton attorney Louis Hofstadter said it would probably be another 15 months before the estate would be ready for distribution.

According to Ohio law, a convicted murderer cannot inherit or take any part in the estate of the person killed. Hofstadter said the law considers the person convicted to have preceded the deceased in death.

He said in this case the estate would be divided among the surviving maternal and paternal aunts and uncles of Leonard Ruppert Jr.

Property in the name of Alma Ruppert, Leonard's wife, would be inherited by her mother and father.

Prosecutor John Holcomb had charged during the trial that Ruppert killed his family as part of an elaborate plot by which he would obtain the inheritance after he was found innocent

Family happy with refugees

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) - Nineyear-old Kent Wyant, whose deaf-mute parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wyant, have taken in a Vietnamese refugee family, summed it up

"It's great," said Kent, who suddenly found himself with four new playmates. "It's a little crowded, but none of us mind."

His 26-year-old sister, Rita Wyant, made the arrangements, when, as a stewardess for a charter airline taking part in the refugee airlift, "I realized that I was personally going to have to do something about it."

Pham Danh Duong, a Vietnamese barber, his wife and four children arrived Tuesday night from the Indiantown Gap, Pa., refugee camp and took up residence with the Wyants in a one-story, three bedroom house in

Using her time off from work, she already has placed 15 persons in Southwestern Ohio and is speaking to groups and interested persons to solicit support for the refugees.

"Americans have had so much for so long that we have lost our ability to share. People haven't had to help other They went to English school in the people," she said, adding that she has encountered some opposition from individuals not particularly intent on welcoming the Vietnamese.

Despite the larger household, things seem to be working out well at the Wyants. Duong started work Thursday at a local aluminum siding company, and neighbors have given "pretty good support," according to Kent.

Miss Wyant said her parents are happy with the arrangement as well. "It's probably better for them than for a hearing couple," she said. "They're very good with signs and gestures and there's no language problem.'

"We were just playing cards," Kent said of the children. "I can't speak Vietnamese, but they speak to me. camp and they're learning fast.

Malpractice bill battle looms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Senate is expected to vote next week on medical malpractice legislation, but a major battle is almost certain over proposed limitations on lawyers fees and total recovery by victims.

A Senate insurance subcommitee voted 2-1 Thursday to return a heavily amended bill to the full Elections, Financial Insitutions and Insurance panel

However, several key changes, beefing up guaranteed protection in the bill, will be challenged in full committee hearings before the plan is recommended for floor action.

For starters, the three-member subpanel reinserted graduated fee limits on contingency rates often charged by lawyers for victims in malpractice cases. Under contingency rates, lawyers collect percentages of settlements they win, but get nothing in cases they lose.

"I just think it's unwise and unhelpful at this point to get involved in this controversy," said Sen. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, an attorney who voted against the amendment as well as the entire subcommittee report.

"I don't think there's any evidence before this committee that the contigent fee arrangements contribute to excessive verdicts," he said. "We're seriously jeopardizing the prospect for this bill for any eventual favorable (by the entire consideration legislature.)'

The House had removed the mandated fee limits, which are bitterly opposed by the Ohio State Bar Association, and directed the state Supreme Court to set up a rate

The subcommittee has also clamped a $500,000 ceiling on total legal recovery by victims in malpractice cases. The original bill had placed no limitation on total recovery, although it contained a $200,000 cap on settlements involving pain and suffering.

The senators also increased surcharges that could be assessed against physicians and hospitals to assure the solvency of the guaranteed protection insurance pool.

The pool, called the Joint Underwriters Association, would be made up of all Ohio insurance companies offering malpractice, accident or liability coverage. It would be designed to offer last resort coverage to physicians unable to acquire insurance through private firms.

Sens. Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus, and Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, both nonlawyers, voted in favor of most of the major changes, with Dennis dissenting.

O'Schaughnessy, who chaired the subcommittee, said the full panel would get the bill Monday and send it to the Senate floor for a vote before the end of next week.

David Louis, son of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Louis, 3770 White Road, captured top honors in the senior boys division of the area safety speaking contest held recently.

Louis' topic, "When You're Hot," covered safety limits when a fire occurs in the home. The 17-year-old Louis emphasized proper fire control procedures, knowing when and how to call the fire department, and panic prevention. Louis earned the right to represent Fayette County in the area contest by winning the senior boys division in Fayette County in June.

Fayette County's girl winner, Cheryl Blue, was unable to compete in the area contest since she is participating with 23 other Miami Trace High School students on a summer field trip.

The area safety speaking contest is an annual 4-H event sponsored by the Westfield Co. of Westfield Center, Ohio. Arthur Dannecker Jr., vice president of public relations for the Westfield Co. was present for the contest and presented each contestant with a bronze 4-H trophy and certificate.

Sixteen teenage 4-H'ers from 10 counties did their part in creating safety awareness by participating in the area 4-H safety speaking contest held at the Terrrace Lounge in Washington C. H.

Winner in the girls division was Lisa Anthony from Madison County. Alternate winners were Craig Corry, Greene County, and Mary Alice Cripe, Clark County.

The two area winners will advance to Academy auditorium in Columbus. the state contest, which will be held State winers will receive a trip to the

August 27 at the Ohio Highway Patrol national 4-H club congress in Chicago.

Activities quicken at launching sites

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) -Activity quickened at launch sites half a world apart today as Russian technicians began joining a Soyuz spaceship with its booster rocket and American astronauts continued rehearsals for the U.S.-Soviet space mission set for Tuesday. In a telephone report to his American counterpart at the Houston Space Center, Dr. Konstantin D. Bushuyev, Apollo-Soyuz technical director for the Soviet Union, said preparations were on schedule at the Baikonur Cosmodrome.

Bushuyev told American technical director Glynn S. Lunney that the rocket and spacecraft will be moved to the launch pad on Saturday.

The movement of the Soyuz to the launch pad just three days before launching underscores the Russian agency doctors. approach of conducting most of the prelaunch checkout in a hangar. Weather often is severe at Baikonur, with ice storms in the winter and heat waves in summer. The temperature there Thursday was 113 degrees.

Lunney told Bushuyev that launch preparations were going well at Cape Canaveral. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration prefers placing its rocket and spacecraft on the launch pad for much of the prelaunch checkout. The Apollo and Saturn booster for the upcoming mission have been on the pad since March 24, wellprotected by a surrounding service

There was no damage to either as a severe thunderstorm swept Cape Canaveral late Thursday afternoon, buffeting the launch site with winds up to 45 miles an hour. The rocket, standing alone, can withstand winds up to 65 m.p.h. Earlier in the day Thursday, the commanders of the Soviet and American spaceships also spoke by telephone. Apollo commander Thomas P. Stafford told Soviet commander Alexei Leonov that he and the other American crew members, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton, will personally fly T38 planes from Houston to Cape Canaveral on Saturday night to begin final preparations.

Leonov and his copilot, Valeri Kubasov, already are at Baikonur. Stafford, Slayton and Brand planned to spend several hours in the Apollo simulator today, rehearsing various phases of the mission. On Thursday they underwent final major physical examination and were pronounced in

Kent State trial in recess

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Claims with rocks, although he admitted under for $46 million in damages were dropped Thursday against a former Ohio National Guard mechanic after he testified he was not in danger when fellow troops fired on student demonstrators at Kent State University in 1970. Earlier, two officers at the time told federal jurors guardsmen were being threatened by protestors gaining on them as they retreated from a practice football field where they had been showered with rocks and other debris.

The ex-mechanic, Robert D. Hatfield, said he fired in the air after other guardsmen started shooting. "I thought there had been an order and I didn't hear it," he said. Hatfield's dismissal reduced the number of defendants to 41, including 37 present or former guardsmen. The others are Gov. James Rhodes, who ordered the troops to the campus during a weekend of rioting sparked by U.S. military activity in Cambodia, and three exstate officials.

The damages claims are being pressed by victims of the shootings and their families. The 13-second volley of guard gunfire killed four students and wounded nine as the guard sought to break up a noontime campus rally May

Then 2nd Lt. Alexander Stevenson said the troops were constantly gian cing over their shoulders and sidestepping their way up a campus slope because of the rate at which demonstrators were overtaking them. He said guardsmen were being pelted cross-examination he had not been struck nor had he seen anyone struck by a missile during the last couple of minutes before the shooting.

Capt. Howard R. Fallon, then also a second lieutenant, said the demonstrators were "almost animalistic" and that the danger was greater than any he had encountered in civil disturbances the four years before.

He said the crowd noise increased as demonstrators followed guardsmen up the hill. "The chant became: "Kill the pigs," he said.

Fallon said the sounds were distorted

in a "man-made canyon" of a depression in the hill between a tall classroom building and a dormitory.

Later, lawyers for the victims used that testimony to discredit Fallon's contention that he could identify the first two or three shots of the burst of gunfire as coming from weapons of smaller caliber than the .30-caliber M1 rifles or .45-cal. pistols carried by

Fallon said he was struck by flying objects just before the shooting, but like Stevenson, denied he fired that sunny spring afternoon.

Roberta Steinbacher, psychologist at Cleveland State University, said old attitudes die hard, and those surrounding rape still live and impede the prosecution of rapists.

Dr. Steinbacher testified before the House Judiciary Committee in favor of a bill revising Ohio's rape laws to protect the victim.

The bill, already passed by the Senate, would greatly restrict the ability of defense attorneys to grill rape victims on their sexual past. Dr. Steinbacher said the present law,

-Women want sex forced on them. -Nice girls don't get raped, so a rape victim is not a "nice girl."

-Rapists may have been tempted beyond their control by the subtle advances of the victim.
